TEXAS DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC SAFETY—UNIFORM CRIME REPORTING

CRIME IN TEXAS : 2001

Annual Report of 2001 UCR Data Collection: Crime in Texas 2001 Overview

The major crime rate in Texas increased slightly in 2001, according to data compiled by the Texas Uniform Crime Reporting Program.

Compared with 2000, the crime rate—the number of crimes per 100,000 population in Texas—increased 4.0 percent in 2001. The violent crime rate increased 5.1 percent in 2001 over 2000. The property crime rate increased 3.9 percent in 2001.

“We have been very fortunate that crime rates have decreased in recent years. These numbers make it clear that law enforcement and the public must redouble our efforts to fight crime,” said Col. Thomas A. Davis, Jr., Director of the DPS.

The total number of major crimes committed was up 6.4 percent in 2001 compared with 2000. Of the seven index crimes, robbery was up 16.9 percent; motor vehicle theft was up 10.4 percent.

The total number of arrests in Texas decreased 2.1 percent in 2001. This is the fourth year in a row in which arrests have decreased. The number of juvenile arrests decreased 1.5 percent, while adult arrests decreased 2.2 percent.

The Texas Uniform Crime Reporting Program also collects statistics on hate crimes and family violence incidents.

In 2001, Texas law enforcement agencies reported 429 incidents of hate crimes involving 472 victims and 424 offenders.

Law enforcement agencies reported 180,385 family violence incidents involving 194,112 victims and 190,059 offenders in 2001.

Statistical Crime Analysis

The UCR Program

In an effort to quantify the increases and decreases in the number of crimes committed in Texas, the Uniform Crime Reporting program (UCR) collects reports of crimes and arrests from Texas law enforcement agencies. This information is printed in Crime in Texas and in periodic special news releases.

Crime Index

To track the variations in crime, the UCR data collection program uses a statistical summary tool referred to as the Crime Index. Rather than collecting reports of all crimes that were committed in a particular year, UCR collects the reports of seven index crimes. The crimes in this group are all serious, either by their very nature or because of the frequency with which they occur, and present a common enforcement problem to police agencies. Crimes within this index can be further categorized as violent crimes, which include murder, forcible rape, robbery and aggravated assault, or as property crimes, which consist of burglary, larceny-theft and motor vehicle theft. By reducing the overall occurrence of crime to this Crime Index, the annual comparison of crime trends is simplified. Although arson is an index crime in that the number of reported offenses are collected, arson is not part of the Crime Index.

Index Crime Volume

The total estimated number of Index Crimes reported for 2001 was 1,098,738. This volume of crime represents an increase of 6.4 percent when compared to 2000.

Index Crime Rate

The crime rate reported by UCR is defined as the number of crimes committed per 100,000 population. This mechanism allows comparisons between periods of time to be made without being affected by population swings. For 2001, the Texas Crime Rate was 5152.3 crimes per 100,000 population, a 4.0% increase from 2000. The crime rate is based on the 2001 Texas population of 21,325,018.

Data Estimation

Although the Texas UCR program enjoys a high rate of participation among Texas' law enforcement community, not every agency reports its crime information. To provide data that is comparable to other years, it is necessary to estimate the information for non-reporting agencies. In 2001, 975 law enforcement agencies participated in the UCR program representing 99.3 percent of the population.

Arson

In 2001, reported arson offenses increased 1.0 percent from 2000. Property damage from arson was reported at over $116 million in 2001.

- 8,432 arsons in 2001
- 8,350 arsons in 2000

Property Value

The value of property stolen during the commission of Index Crimes in 2001 was more than $1.8 billion.

The value of stolen property recovered by Texas law enforcement agencies in 2001 was more than $716 million.

Texas Peace Officers Killed or Assaulted

- Ten Texas law enforcement officers were killed feloniously in the line of duty due to criminal action during 2001.
- Nine Texas law enforcement officers were killed in duty-related accidents during 2001.
- There were 4,936 officers assaulted during 2001 compared to 4,935 in 2000. This represents an increase of 0.02 percent.

HATE CRIME

The Texas Hate Crime Act defines hate crimes as crimes motivated by prejudice and hatred, including incidents for which statistics are kept under the federal Hate Crimes Statistics Act. The federal law defines hate crimes as crimes that manifest evidence of prejudice based on race, religion, sexual orientation, ethnicity or disability.

The Texas Hate Crimes Act directs every law enforcement agency within Texas to report bias offenses to the Department of Public Safety.

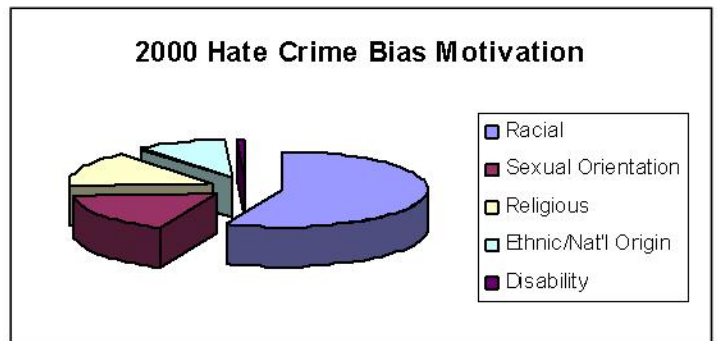

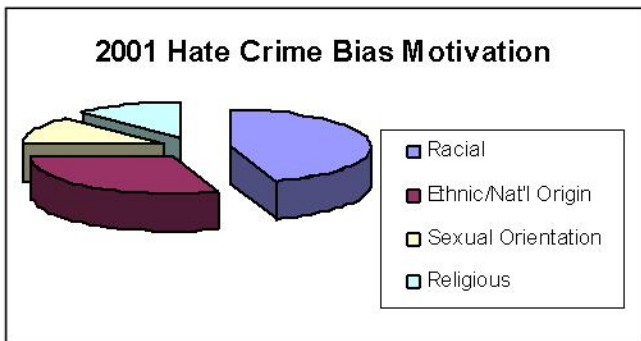

Bias Motivation

The largest percentage of hate crime reports were racial in nature. The second most commonly reported bias motivation was ethnicity/national origin. The third most common form of hate crime was sexual orientation and the fourth most common bias was religious.

Volume

The total number of reported Texas hate crime incidents in 2001 was 429. This represents an increase of 50 percent when compared to 2000. These incidents involved 472 victims, 424 offenders and resulted in a total of 463 offenses. This increase may be attributed to recent national events, which have resulted in a significant increase in the reporting of hate crimes involving ethnic and religious bias.

Offenses

Offenses in the hate crime data collection program are defined in accordance with federal Uniform Crime Reporting definitions and do not necessarily conform to Texas state definitions. Complete offense definitions are available in the Crime in Texas annual publication or from UCR upon request.

Hate Crime offense information falls into the eight index crimes—murder, rape, robbery, aggravated assault, burglary, larceny-theft, motor vehicle theft and arson—plus simple assault, intimidation and vandalism. Of these offense categories, aggravated assault, simple assault, intimidation and vandalism accounted for 93 percent of all bias crime offenses in 2001.

Victims

Information on the victims of hate crimes is limited to victim type. While the bias motivation information identifies the offender's bias, the victim may not actually belong to the group the offender sought to harm. For this reason, information on the victim's group membership is not recorded.

Victim type, in the hate crime data collection program is listed as: individual, business, financial institution, government, religious organization, society/public, other and unknown. Of the victim types, individuals were the main hate crime target.

FAMILY VIOLENCE

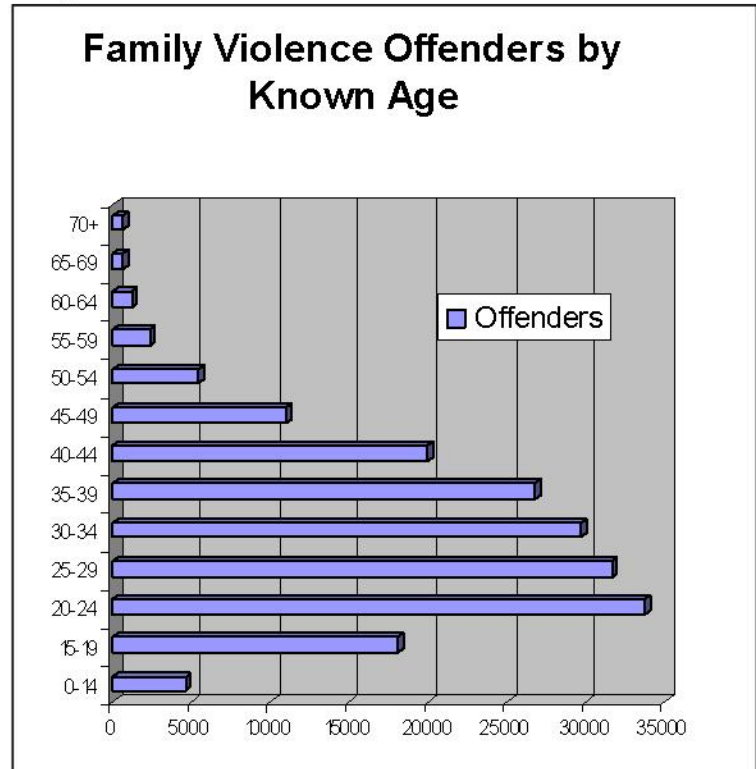

The Texas Family Code defines family violence as an act by a member of a family or household against another member that is intended to result in physical harm, bodily injury, assault, or a threat that reasonably places the member in fear of imminent physical harm. The law excludes the reasonable discipline of a child. By definition "Family" includes individuals related by consanguinity (blood) or affinity, (marriage or former marriage), biological parents of the same child, foster children, foster parents, and members or former members of the same household (including roommates).

Offenders

In 2001, a reported 190,059 offenders were involved in incidents of family violence.

Victims

Incidents of family violence in 2001 involved a reported 194,112 victims.

Officers

Potential assaults on peace officers are a serious problem inherent to police intervention and investigation of family violence. In 2001, during the course of reported family violence incidents, 523 Texas law officers were assaulted. By contrast, during this same period 4,936 assaults were made on law officers during all types of police activity.

Offenses

Family violence offense information falls into six general categories: assaults, homicides, kidnapping/abductions, robberies, forcible sex offenses, and non-forcible sex offenses. Of the six main categories, assaults accounted for 98 percent of all offenses.

| FAMILY VIOLENCE OFFENSES | | | |
|---------------------------|---------|------------------------------------|-------|
| Type | Group % | Offense | % |
| Assaults | 97.7% | Aggravated Assault | 15.1% |
| | | Simple Assault | 72.8% |
| | | Intimidation | 9.8% |

| Non-Forcible Sex Offenses | 0.1% | Forcible Fondling | 0.7% |
| | | Incest | 0.06% |
| | | Statutory Rape | 0.04% |

Injuries

Considering the injuries sustained by victims of family violence, it should be noted that the police officer who responds to the disturbance call determines the extent of injuries. Therefore, all injuries are considered to be apparent injuries at the time of the report. If later medical attention indicates that the injuries were more or less severe than noted by the responding officer, this information is not included in the family violence report. The majority of reported injuries (52 percent) were minor; in 44 percent of family violence reports "no injury" was recorded.

Major injuries were reported in 4 percent of the cases.

Of those injuries, severe lacerations were the most common at 32 percent. Possible internal injuries were reported in 30 percent of the major injury cases and apparent broken bones were noted in 13 percent of the cases.

Weapons

The most common weapon involved in family violence cases was physical force through the use of hands, feet and fists (strong arm), which accounts for 77 percent of the incidents. The Texas Family Violence law considers the use of threats and intimidation to be serious enough to report and, thus, 10 percent of the reports were listed as involving no weapons. Knives or cutting instruments (4 percent), blunt objects (3 percent), firearms (1 percent) and other (5 percent) account for the remaining cases. Considered as other weapons were motor vehicles, poison, explosives, fire, drugs, unknown, and miscellaneous weapons.
